DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Pelhos et al. (US 2004/0115481).

Pelhos et al. disclose a magnetic recording disk having multiple seed layers disposed on a substrate wherein at least one of the seed layers has grains wherein the crystallographic texture is tilted with respect to a line normal to the substrate surface. The seed layers are formed by an oblique deposition technique (see paragraphs 11, 30-31, 63). The reference teaches that multiple crystalline layers are deposited on the seedlayer including a magnetic recording layer and a protective overcoat.

The reference teaches that the seedlayer may be formed of separate layers or a single layer of continuously changing material (see paragraph 31). The examiner takes the position that the embodiment requiring a single layer of continuously changing material reads on applicant's claim limitation directed to a recording medium "comprising" a first and a second seedlayer "being formed of the same material." This limitation includes open claim language; "comprising" and "formed of" do not exclude unrecited components from either of the seedlayers. Thus, the examiner has interpreted the claim to mean that each of the two seedlayers must contain one or more materials that are the same but each layer may contain said one of more materials in different amount. It is noted that requiring that the materials are the same is broader than requiring that the compositions are the same.

With respect to a “first seed layer” and a “second seed layer” as set forth in claim 1, the examiner maintains that the gradient layer taught by the prior art is actually made of up multiple strata or layers that read on this aspect of the claimed invention.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Pelhos et al. (US 2004/0115481) in view of Fujimaki et al. (US 2003/0228496) .

Pelhos et al. teach all of the limitations of the claims as detailed above, except for the limitations directed to features of the magnetic recording device including the use of an actuator for moving the magnetic head with respect to the recording medium.

Fujimaki et al. teach that it is known in the art that a magnetic recording device includes a recording medium in combination with a magnetic head and an actuator arm for moving the head with respect to the medium.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claim 6 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims. The closest prior art to Pelhos et al. fail to teach or suggest the use of a seedlayer containing Al and Ru. The prior art fails to teach or suggest a motivation to substitute the claimed material for the seedlayer materials taught by Pelhos et al.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments filed 3/10/05 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues that Pelhos fails to teach that the first and second seedlayers are formed from the same material. The examiner respectfully disagrees for the reasons detailed above in paragraph 2.

7. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
